

The media is intended to inform, alert, serve the people of this nation, not Wall Street. A healthy democracy is dependent on independent, alert sentinels to accomplish this task. Putting all the media under fewer and fewer big corporate tents is counter to this goal. There are VERY good reasons why ownership restrictions were enacted in the first place. Read your history. Those reasons haven't changed. The amount of media sources has increased, but the nature of corporations and the needs of our communities have not. You are responsible for safeguarding a public resource for the citizens of this nation, not "client", not "consumers". It is my hope that you truly take your responsibilities seriously, as a working member of the media.
